FUNDRAISING MOTIVATORS

We know that fundraising can be a challenge.
Here are some ways to help motivate your team and share with them the importance of this

CREATE MILESTONE CELEBRATIONS

Set a weekly or monthly target for the team to reach and then PROVIDE A SMALL REWARD
after a practice or game if they are successful.
Be sure to send us a picture to feature your team in the next Newsletter!

SEND REGULAR UPDATES

Provide your team with their fundraising stats on a regular basis. This shows them their commitment is paying off and the money they are raising MAKES A DIFFERENCE in the lives of those battling cancer!

SHARE STORIES FROM KIDS CANCER CARE FOUNDATION

Put a name and story to the "reason" why we are fundraising for this tournament. Feature a LITTLE HERO in a weekly email to your team that they can share with their family & friends along with a link to their donation page.

YOUR Support Puts YOU on TEAM EASTON!!

Easton was just finishing up grade four in June 2023 when he started experiencing neck pain and nausea. He'd taken a hit to the head from a soccer ball a few weeks earlier, so his parents Amanda and Jeff were worried it was a concussion. When his parents learned that Easton was also experiencing vision problems and seeing double, they were even more concerned. What they didn't know is that with morning vomiting, Easton was showing signs of a pediatric brain cancer.

After several doctors' appointments and a series of tests, including an ultrasound, X-ray, blood work, and an eye exam, the Moppett-Beatches were still no more knowledgeable about their son's condition.

One morning, Easton woke up with neck pain so severe it brought him to tears and later vomiting. His parents rushed him to emergency. A CAT scan, followed by an MRI, confirmed that Easton had a brain tumour. Their world shattered.

Within a week, Easton had undergone two brain surgeries to remove the tumour. They were intense, risky procedures as the tumour was dangerously close to his brain stem. A biopsy of the tumour revealed that Easton had medulloblastoma – an aggressive pediatric brain cancer. The tumour was the size of a golf ball.

"Words cannot express what it was like to wait during this time," says Amanda. "We held his hand in the PICU until the next morning at 9 am, just waiting for him to wake up, to talk, so we could finally breathe again."

Jeff agrees: "It was the worst news. We could hardly bear to tell him. Two brain surgeries in one week. It was almost unbearable for all of us."

During the second surgery, the surgeon was able to remove 100 per cent of the tumour. That was the good news. The bad news was that Easton could not move after the first surgery. That would mean another 21 days in the hospital, relearning to swallow, drink, eat, sit and walk.

Easton was barely walking again when they had to leave for Jacksonville, Florida where he received 30 rounds of proton radiation. Later that fall, Easton was back in Calgary, beginning a six-month chemotherapy protocol.

After more than a year of invasive medical procedures, harsh side effects, and intense fear and uncertainty, Easton finally finished treatment. Amanda recalls the day fondly: "He burst into tears as his class took a field trip to surprise him in the backyard, ringing bells to mark his last chemo treatment."

That support meant everything to Easton, and with your support, Kids Cancer Care could also be there for him.
